

The lost Village of Capel Celyn

What Was Capel Celyn?

Capel Celyn was a lovely village in north Wales it had a small but nice community. It had a school a church and a lot of farmland it was in 1965 all people in Capel Celyn tried their best to stop the government from flooding their place but they simply could not stop them.

What Was Life Like Before It Got flooded?

*Capel Celyn was one of the last Welsh only speaking community in Wales it had a rich
culture and farmland
there was only 67
people that lost there homes out of 75 there were 12 farms and 48
farmers.*

What happened To Capel Celyn?

Capel Celyn was once a small village in north Wales is had a friendly community a school and a church was in the small village but in 1965 the government decided to make a reservoir for clean water they all had to leave one by one to find a place to make a new life somewhere else but they had a hard time trying to. Capel Celyn is part of rich Welch history but is sadly is not there today it still stands as a reservoir in north Wales but it will be remembered.

What is a Reservoir?

A reservoir is a place where all dirty water goes into a machine which makes the water clean and ready to drink. A lot of places have a reservoir so all villages can drink clean water.

How did the Community feel
About the Flood?

The community felt heartbroken, sad, terrible or even mad and angry
about the government.
The government did it because they wanted
more water for the city.

What is a Flood?

A flood is when a place gets covered in water the place gets damaged and the people have to leave their homes. There are different types of floods for example the Capel Celyn flood was because the government wanted to build a reservoir instead of Capel Celyn.

What is Llyn Celyn like now?

Llyn Celyn is a reservoir in north Wales that gets all the clean water for the city of Liverpool. Llyn Celyn is the name of the reservoir that covered the village of Capel Celyn.

